Guide to the Use of the Dictionary

1. Headword

1.1 The headword is printed in bold type, or in bold italic type if the word is not naturalized in English and is usually found in italics in printed matter.

1.2 Variant spellings are given before the definition (e.g. cabby n. (also cabbie)); in all such cases the form given as the headword is the preferred form. When the variant form is alphabetically remote from the main form it is given at its proper place in the dictionary (e.g. caiman var. of CAYMAN).

1.3 Words that are different but spelt the same way (homographs) are distinguished by superior figures (e.g. bat¹ and bat²).

1.4 Words that are normally spelt with a capital initial are given in this form as the headword; when they are in some senses spelt with a small initial and in others with a capital initial this is indicated by repetition of the full word in appropriate form within the entry (as at carboniferous).

1.5 Variant American spellings are indicated by the designation US (e.g. favour . . . US favor).

1.6 Verbal forms which can end in either -ize or -ise (e.g. centralize) are given in the -ize form but it should be noted that the -ise form is also permissible. The same applies to derivative words in -ization and -izer and so on.

2. Pronunciation

2.1 Guidance on pronunciation follows the system of the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA). Only the pronunciation standard in southern England is given.

2.1.1 Consonants:

b, d, f, h, k, l, m, n, p, r, s, t, v, w, and z have their usual English values. Other symbols are used as follows:

g (game)	ŋ (long)	ʃ (ship)
tʃ (chair)	θ (thin)	ʒ (measure)
dʒ (jet)	ð (there)	j (yes) x (Scots etc.: loch)

2.1.2 Vowels:

short vowels	long vowels	diphthongs
æ (bat)	ɑ: (dark)	eɪ (say)
e (bet)	i: (seem)	aɪ (buy)
ə (another)	ɔ: (born)	ɔɪ (toy)
ɪ (sit)	ɜ: (term)	əʊ (so)
ɒ (top)	u: (moon)	aʊ (now)
ʌ (but)		ɪə (peer)
ʊ (put)		eə (fair)
		ʊə (poor)

(ə) signifies the indeterminate sound as in garden, carnal, and rhythm.

The following signify sounds not natural in English:

- æ̃ (bain-marie, timbre)
- ã (contretemps)
- õ (bon voyage)

2.1.3 Main stress is indicated by ' preceding the relevant syllable; no attempt is made to indicate secondary stress.

2.2 Pronunciation of words of one syllable is not given when it conforms with the following basic pattern:

2.2.1 Single-letter vowels a = /æ/, e = /e/, i = /ɪ/, o = /ɒ/, u = /ʊ/; when lengthened by a succeeding single consonant followed by e, a = /eɪ/, e = /i:/, i = /aɪ/, o = /əʊ/, u = /ju:/ (as in mat and mate; met and mete, sit and site, tot and tote, tun and tune).

2.2.2 Other vowels as in gain, fair, far, dare, saw, say, bean, fear, seen, seer, herd, here, few, thief, bier, bird, tire, boat, board, hoe, join, moon, poor, born, loud, sour, now, toy, due, burn, pure.

2.2.3 Consonants as in arc, cob, cry (but soft c before e, i, y as in ice and city); church; black, lodge; game, bag (but soft g before e, i, y as in age and gin); jet; sing; blank; photo; queen; shot; bitch; thin; box; yet. Other consonants have their usual English values.

2.2.4 Initial double consonants as in knot; rhyme, which; wring.

2.3 Pronunciation of two-syllable words ending in -er preceded by a consonant is also not given when the first syllable is stressed and follows the above pattern (as in porter, matter, poker).

2.4 Pronunciation of compound words of easily recognized elements (e.g. bathroom, jellyfish) is not given when the stress is on the first element.

2.5 Pronunciation of regularly formed derivatives is not given when it can be easily deduced from the headword or from a preceding main word (e.g. casually from casual and catty from cat), unless there is a change of stress or some other notable feature (as with certification).

The following suffixes and terminations especially should be noted:

- able /-əb(ə)l/
- age /-ɪdʒ/
- al (preceded by consonant) /-(ə)l/
- dom /-dəm/
- ed (after d or t) /-ɪd/; (after other voiceless consonant) /-t/; (elsewhere) /-d/
- ess /-ɪs/
- est /-ɪst/
- ful /-fʊl/
- fy /-faɪ/
- ible /-ɪb(ə)l/
- ism /-ɪz(ə)m/
- ive /-ɪv/
- less /-lɪs/
- ment /-mənt/
- ness /-nɪs/
- ous /-əs/
- sion /-ʃ(ə)n or -z(ə)n/
- some /-səm/
- tion /-ʃ(ə)n/
- y (preceded by consonant, but cf. -fy) /-ɪ/

3. Part-of-speech label

3.1 This is given for all main entries and derivatives except those consisting of two or more unhyphenated words.

3.2 It is not given for compound items listed at the end of entries except where these exist as more than one part of speech.

3.3 Different parts of speech of a single word are listed separately preceded by a bold number (e.g. turn 1 n. . . . 2 v.t.).

3.4 Verbs that are both transitive and intransitive are given the simple designation v.; those that are only transitive or only intransitive are labelled v.t. and v.i. respectively. The designation absol. denotes use with an implied object (as at abdicate).

4. Inflexion

4.1 Plurals of Nouns: nouns that form their plural regularly by adding -s (or -es when they end in -s, -x, -z, -sh, or soft -ch), or by changing -y (preceded by a consonant or qu) to -ies, receive no comment. Plural forms of those ending in -o (preceded by any letter other than another o) are always given. Other irregular forms are also given, except when the word is a compound of obvious formation (e.g. footman, schoolchild).

4.2 Forms of Verbs:

4.2.1 The following regular forms receive no comment:

- (i) third person singular present forms adding -s to the stem (or -es to stems ending in -s, -x, -z, -sh, or soft -ch and stems in -o preceded by any letter other than another o), or changing -y (preceded by a consonant or qu) to -ies (e.g. cries, defies).
- (ii) past tenses and past participles adding -ed to the stem, changing final -y (preceded by a consonant or qu) to -ied (e.g. cried, defied).
- (iii) present participles adding -ing to the stem, dropping a final silent e (e.g. changing, dancing).

4.2.2 A doubled consonant in verbal inflexions (e.g. rubbed, rubbing, sinned, sinning) is shown in the form (-bb-, -nn-, etc.). Where practice differs in American usage this is noted (as at cavil).

4.3 Comparative and Superlative of Adjectives and Adverbs:

The following regular forms receive no comment:

4.3.1 Words of one syllable adding -er and -est, those ending in silent e dropping the e (e.g. braver, bravest) and those ending in a final consonant (except h, w, or x) preceded by a single-letter vowel doubling the consonant (e.g. hotter, hottest).

4.3.2 Words of one or two syllables ending in -y (preceded by a consonant or qu) changing -y to -ier and -iest (e.g. drier, driest; happier, happiest).

4.4 Adjectives in -able formed from Transitive Verbs:

4.4.1 Verbs generally drop silent final -e except after c and g (e.g. movable but changeable).

4.4.2 Words of more than one syllable ending in -y (preceded by a consonant or qu) change y to i (e.g. enviable, undeniable).

4.4.3 A final consonant is doubled as in normal inflexion (conferable, regrettable): cf. 4.2.2 above.

5. Definition

5.1 Definitions are listed in order of comparative familiarity and importance, with the most current and important senses first.

5.2 They are separated by a semicolon, or by a comma when the two senses are more closely related.

5.3 A word or words in italics forming part of the definition indicates that it is normally used with the headword in the sense concerned (as with of and that at certain). Words such as one, person, and do are simply representative of a type: thus oneself implies myself, yourself, etc., and do implies any verb of action.

5.4 Round brackets enclose letters or words that are optional (as at crash v. where '(cause to) proceed with a crash' can mean either 'proceed with a crash' or 'cause to proceed with a crash'), and indicate typical objects of transitive verbs (such as 'milk' and 'skin' in two senses of cream v.).

6. Subject and Usage labels

6.1 These are used to clarify the particular context in which a word or phrase is normally used.

6.2 Words and phrases more common in informal spoken English than in formal written English are labelled colloq. (colloquial) or sl. (slang) as appropriate.

6.3 Some subject labels are used to indicate the particular relevance of a term or subject with which it is associated (e.g. Mus., Law, Physics). They are not used when this is sufficiently clear from the definition itself.

6.4 Two categories of deprecated usage are indicated by special markings: D (= disputed) indicates a use that, although widely found, is still the subject of much adverse comment by informed users; R (= racially offensive) indicates a use that is regarded as offensive by members of a particular ethnic or religious group.

7. Phrases

Phrases are listed (together with compounds) in alphabetical order after the treatment of the main word, this being the earliest important word in the phrase except when a later word is more clearly the key word. The words a, the, one, and person do not count for purposes of alphabetical order.

8. Compounds

8.1 Compound terms forming one word (e.g. bathroom, jellyfish) are listed as main entries; those consisting of two or more words (e.g. chain reaction) or joined by a hyphen (e.g. chain-gang) are given under the first element or occasionally as main entries.

8.2 When a hyphenated compound in bold type is divided at the end of a line the hyphen is repeated at the beginning of the next line to show that it is a permanent feature of the spelling and not just an end-of-line hyphen.

9. Derivatives

9.1 Words formed by adding a suffix to another word are in many cases listed in alphabetical order at the end of the entry for the main word (e.g. chalkiness and chalky at chalk). In this position they are not defined since they can be understood from the sense of the main word and that given at the suffix concerned; when further definition is called for they are given main entries in their own right (e.g. changeable).

9.2 For reasons of space words formed by certain suffixes are not included at all except when some special feature of spelling or pronunciation or meaning is involved. These suffixes are -ABLE, -ER (in sense '... that does'), -ER and -EST (see also 4.3), -ISH, -LESS, -LIKE, -LY, and -NESS.

10. Etymology

10.1 This is given in square brackets [] at the end of the entry. In the space available it can only give the direct line of derivation in outline; the immediate source-language is always given first. Forms in other languages are not given if they are exactly or nearly the same as the English form.

10.2 OE is used for words that are known to have been used in Old English (before AD 1150).

10.3 AF (Anglo-French) denotes the variety of French current in England in the Middle Ages after the Norman Conquest.

10.4 L (Latin) denotes classical and Late Latin up to about AD 600; med.L (medieval Latin) that of the period about 600-1500; AL (Anglo-Latin) denotes Latin as used in medieval England.

10.5 Where the origin of a word cannot be reliably ascertained, the form [orig. uncert.] or [orig. unkn.] is used.

10.6 Names of the rarer languages that have contributed to English (such as Balti at polo, and Cree at wapiti) are given in full without explanation; they may be found explained in larger dictionaries or in encyclopaedias.

10.7 An etymology is not given when it is identical in essentials with that of the preceding entry, when the word is an abbreviation, or when the derivation is clear from the definition (as at burgundy).

11. Prefixes and Suffixes

11.1 A large selection of these is given in the main body of the text; prefixes are given in the form ex-, re-, etc., and suffixes in the form -ion, -ness, etc. These entries should be consulted to explain the many derivatives given at the end of entries (see 9.1).

11.2 Prefixes and suffixes are not normally given a pronunciation since this can change considerably when they form part of a word.

12. Cross-Reference

12.1 Cross-reference to main entries is indicated by small capitals (e.g. calk US var. of CAULK; change one's tune see TUNE).

12.2 Cross-reference in italics to a defined phrase or compound refers to the entry for the first word unless another is specified.

12.3 A homograph (see 1.3) is indicated by a superior figure (e.g. calves pl. of CALF, CALF).

13. Proprietary Status

This dictionary includes some words which are, or are asserted to be, proprietary names or trade marks. Their inclusion does not imply that they have acquired for legal purposes a non-proprietary or general significance, nor is any other judgement implied concerning their legal status. In cases where the editor has some evidence that a word is used as a proprietary name or trade mark this is indicated by the letter P, but no judgement concerning the legal status of such words is made or implied thereby.
